Asker Healthcare Group has acquired 100 per cent of the shares in Ambercell Solutions UAB ("Ambercell"), a leading Baltic medtech solutions provider and distributor.

"We are pleased to welcome Ambercell, one of the most innovative medtech solution providers in the Baltics, to Asker. Its supply chain platform has become the preferred solution in many hospitals in the region, allowing healthcare professionals to focus on their patients and save valuable time. We are proud to support this fast-growing company in its expansion across Europe and to continue improving patient outcomes and reducing the total cost of care together with its experienced team," says Johan Falk, CEO of Asker Healthcare Group.

Ambercell provides therapy- and procedure-specific packs and medical consumables through its proprietary integrated supply chain management platform, alongside a broad portfolio of medical products, technologies, and clinical solutions across Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia. The company focuses on conventional and image-guided operating rooms and interventional medicine.

The company has 45 employees and generated revenue of approximately SEK 250m in the past year.

The acquisition remains subject to regulatory approval and is expected to be completed in the fourth quarter and to contribute positively to the Group's EBITA margin.
